

Overview

'Providence' literally means "The positive influence of outside forces".

Providence, as a company, strives to live up to its name by representing an evolution in outsourced software development.

Through our unique business model and development environment, Providence can achieve reduced costs and time to market, improved quality, scalable development services and a richer solution for clients.

With a full-fledged local development team based in Brisbane Australia, the local Providence team offers consulting, client management, project management, architecture, testing and implementation.

- Reduced costs & improved processes
- Increased product & documentation quality
- The power to do more

offshore benefits

What we do

- Work with client-facing software development firms to translate their client requirements into detailed specifications.
- Project manage your project throughout local consultation and architecture, offshore briefings and technical management, local testing, feedback and delivery.
- Provide detailed documentation on each step.
- Design, develop, test and maintain business solutions using proven methodologies
- Develop successful innovative business solutions adopting the latest technologies eg: database, ecommerce, streaming media, portal, CRM, ERP etc

What we don't do

- Work directly with end-user customers
- Develop our own products

The local team of Software Architects works with clients to define and refine project documentation for the Offshore Development team. The Architects and Client Manager will then quality assure incoming code for the Developers and provide continuous feedback to the Client.
